Daniel.

Mr. A. G. Daniel died at his home in Paragould, Ark. on Nov. 23rd. at the age of 76 years. He was well known in this county having many relatives,
among them Madames W. J. Romans, Arthusa Currey and Carrie Davidson.
He is survived by his wife Mrs. Mary
D. Daniel and one sister Mrs. W. A.
Yantis. Much sympathy is extended to the bereaved ones.

Getting Well.

J. W. the bright little son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Burton of Bryantsville has been having a hard time of it for the past week having contracted Diphtheria. An operation was necessary. Dr. Amon was at the bedside from Wednesday of last week until Tuesday of this week without leaving the house. The little fellow is doing fine now and we hope he will soon be entirely recovered. Miss Darnold has been his nurse.

Logan Ison Announces

Logan Ison announces his candidacy
this week for the nomination for magistrate in the Bryantsville district, subject to the action of the democratic party.

Mr. Ison now holds the office to which he wishes to be reelected, and his acts are a matter of public record which the people may examine and judge him accordingly. He is a clever whod soiled gentleman, and if re-elected, we are satisfied would give the satisfaction in the future that he has in the past.

Judge Hardin's Instructions To Grand Jury Along Entirely New Lines, And If Followed Are Calculated To Decrease The Prevalence Of Crime.

Judge Charles A. Hardin in his instructions to the grand jury after dwelling briefly in general upon the usual matters in regard to which that body is accustomed to be instructed, took occasion to dwell at length upon the cause of crime and the remedy therefor.

Judge Hardin stated that statistics showed that the United States' criminal record, especially in so far as homicicide is concerned, exceeded that of any country in the world, and that Kentucky ranked well up with any state in the Union as regards the number of homicides within her borders annually.
And that the last decade shows an increase of homicides in Kentucky, for the previous decade and that crime
was on the rise.

Judge Hardin stated that the finished criminal, the murderer and his kind, were but the natural outgrowth of lesser crimes, they were trained up to that point, their associations with criminals, their environments, their frequenting of gambling dens, blind tigers and other dens of vice, by a slow but sure process led them up to the point where they became the finished product, the most vicious of criminals, who would not hesitate to do any criminal act, murder included, and that the crime which is prevalent in, and which has blackened the fair name of the state is the natural outgrowth of these dens of iniquity.

He urged upon the grand jury that they seek out these evils if possibly,
and wherever found, take steps to put a stop to their operations, and thereby take the first steps toward abating the crimes with which the calendars of the courts are annually congested. He urged that the gamblers be sought out, brought to the bar of justice and their lairs broken up and put out of existence; that the blind tigers and their proprietors be sought with equal diligence and wherever found, stringent measures be taken for their abatement and punishment.

Judge Hardin has certainly struck the key note, the idea to seek out and eliminate the cause, and thereby make the effect impossible, is certainly a good one, and if his ideas along this line were taken up and followed out throughout the state, the gamblers were made to abandon their nefarious calling, and either made to seek an honest means of earning a livelihood or else leave the state; if the blind tigers were torn out root and branch and their owners and promoters given the severe punishment they so richly deserve, then would we see a brighter and better Kentucky.

Judge Hardin, if he can get the cooperation of the citizens, for it is the citizens that compose our juries, will eventually bring these evil doers to a reckoning, and once before the bar of justice, they will be so strenuously dealt with, that they will be glad to either abandon their calling or accept the alternative.

The instructions have been made the subject of very favorable comment among the class of our citizens who deplore the existence of such evils, and the hope is freely expressed that His Honor will continue along the course he has chosen to pursue, and that his efforts will result in much good.

Will Put Out Full Ticket.

The Progressives of Garrard county,
pursuant to a call of their chairman Mr.
H. V. Bastin, held a Mass Meeting at the court house on Monday afternoon.
Mr. John F. Holtzclaw was elected chairman of the meeting and Mr. R. F.
Parsons secretary. It was unanimously decided to put out a full ticket in the field for county offices to be voted for at the November 1913 election.

Friends Want Mount to Run.

J. R. Mount, of Lancaster, who is well known in Lincoln and who is one of the original Wilson men of Kentucky, is being urged by many of his friends to make the race for the state senate from this district next year.
Mr. Mount is a brother-in-law of Mr.
H. J. McRoberts, of this city, and would have strong support in Lincoln.
The Danville Messenger Tuesday said:
J. R. Mount of Lancaster has always been a staunch supporter of Gov. Beckham, in fact has always worked and talked for him not only in Garrard but all over the state. A number of Mr.
Mount's friends are anxious for him to enter the race for State Senate from this District, and the fact that he is such a warm supporter of Gov. Beckham will make for him many more friends. — Interior Journal.

Circuit Court.

The November term of the Garrard
circuit court convened Monday morning with Judge Charles A. Hardin presiding.
Judge E. V. Puryear was in attendance,
but his commission not having arrived, Hon. George D. Florence acted in behalf of the Commonwealth on the first day, in conjunction with County Attorney Joe E. Robinson. Mr. Pur-year's commission is expected to arrive during the week when he will be sworn in and enter upon his duties as Commonwealth's Attorney for the 13th Judicial district, the position to which he was elected at the recent November election.

Sheriff Ballard was on hand with his deputies, Messrs C. A. and B. F.
Robinson and Tommie Ballard, while Clerk W. B. Mason was assisted by his deputy Miss Sue Shelby Mason.

The following gentlemen were selected to act as jurors during the term:

No Place Like Home.

Lewis Landram's heart always warm to the people of his old home town, in fact that great big warm heart of Lewis goes out to all of his fellow men, but we believe that he would be glad to see a "yaller dog" from home.
He is no respecter of persons, rich or poor, black and white, come in for mention in his good paper the Messenger whenever they chance to show their face in Danville. The following complimentary and flippant articles show just what Lancaster people Lewis observed on the streets of Danville,
last week.

A PROMISING YOUNG PRINTER.

Mr. Len Miller, of the Lancaster Record, was in town Tuesday hustling advertising for that good paper. While Mr. Miller is a young man, yet he is one of the best printers in this section, being absolutely reliable and always in his place. Mr. Miller has a bright future in the business.

ENTHUSIASTIC AUTOIST.

One of the most enthusiastic automob-ilist in Central Kentucky is Mr. John E. Stormes, of Lancaster. Mr. Stormes is kept busy in his large drug store, but never misses an opportunity to steal away with his machine on a pretty day.
He owns a large, five-passenger Chalmers, also a pretty little Hupmobile, and we believe gets more genuine pleasure from a machine than any owner we know. He frequently includes Danville in his "runs" and receives a heartly welcome by his many friends in this city.

REMARKABLE OLD DARKIE.

Bristow Bruce, an old colored man, whose home is in Lancaster brought a load of goods to Danville this week and told a reporter of The Messenger
how he had conquered King Alcohol.
Uncle Bris like many another poor fellow became a slave to liquor. In fact he had touched it up heavily all his life, until about seven years ago. Being on a big thigh lonesome, he went home and told his wife he would quit then and there. Notwithstanding the awful thirst of a bracer—which only those who have experienced the torture can appreciate—he did quit and has never touched it since, although amply able to get it. This faithful old soul is respected by all who know him, and deserves high esteem in which he is held by the white people.

Wanted to Know.

Mother—Freddie, haven't I told you that if you mock at the peculiarities of others you may grow just like them.
Freddie—Say, ma, do you suppose if I mocked at the elephant long enough I'd ever get so's I could pick up apples over the fence with my nose?

THE REASON.

She (at the musicale)—He's advertised as "The Boy Pianist." Why, he's fully nineteen.
He—Yes, but he plays like a boy of nine.

Hardly.
No mortal's life
Can be sublime,
Whose specialty
Is killing time.

Heard in a Restaurant.
Diner—I told you I wanted two fresh laid eggs on toast. Do you call these fresh laid?
Waiter—Yes, sir; fresh laid on the toast, sir.

His Method.
Gillet—How do you accomplish your great success with the ladies? Do you keep giving them things?
Perry—Nothing on earth but encouragement, old man—lodge.

A Trade Grievance.
"Our advertising club has condemned the Wisconsin professor who says nose rubbing should take the place of kissing."
"And why, pray?"
"For encouraging a 'just as good' substitute."—Judge.

Cause for Regret.
Lady—I don't like this picture so well as I did the last one you took of me.
Photographer—Ah, madam, I have not the artistic taste that I had when I was young; and, besides, my camera is getting old.

QUITE ENOUGH.

De Whiz—I don't see how Dough-bag managed to get along in Paris.
De Quiz—Why not?
De Whiz—Why, he couldn't speak the French language.
De Quiz—No, but his money could.

There Was a Man.
There was a man in our town
Who used to go on toots,
Until he saw pink elephants
Emerging from his boots.

A Question.
The Critic—That picture entitled "Charity" is pretty fair for Church-mouse to have painted.
The Querist—Yes; wonder where he got the model of the $2 bill the woman is handing over?

In Suffrage Days.
Pretty Girl—Will you be entitled to a vote before long?
Handsome Friend—No; but I hope to have some one whose vote I can direct pretty soon.

MUFFLED KNOCKS.

"I value your opinion so highly, old chap, that I'm going to ask you not to waste so much of it on me. Wait till I ask you for it."
"Yes, you've told me the story a dozen times, Fladger, but go ahead; there's a sympathetic quality in your voice that I like."

"Going to leave us, are you, Muff-kins? Well, you'll be glad to know that your dropping out won't hurt our business a bit."

"I wish I could afford to buy as good cigars as you can, old scout; I'd buy a rather better quality than you do."

"Gregory, you bad boy, I've told you a dozen times not to watch your Uncle Cyrus when he pours his coffee out into his saucer!"

Welcome Change.

Mrs. Knott Meek—According to the style books, Henry, the loop is to replace the button on certain dress fabrics.

Knott Meek—Great!
Mrs. Knott Meek—Why are you so pleased?

Knott Meek—I am tired of buttoning up gowns and I have always wanted to loop the loop!

THE REASON.

Riggs—I understand that you encourage your son to practice on the cornet.

Griggs—Yes, sir. He's only been playing two months—but today I bought the house next door to me for one-half of its value.

A Common Type.

Behold the shiftless, lazy man
Who makes no effort to advance,
And yet he bawls as loud's he can,
"Alas, I've never had a chance."

Remedy.

"This latest controversy has brought me altogether too much publicity," confided the politician. "What would you advise as a means of avoiding the spotlight?"

"Get married to some woman of social prominence and by the time people have left off discussing the bride this other incident will be forgotten."

A Hobbie.

Mrs. Stiles—How do you like my new gown?
Mr. Stiles—Reminds me of a crowded theater.

Mrs. Stiles—Crowded theater! How so?
Mr. Stiles—There seems to be standing room only—Judge.

Parental Duty.

"I'm afraid my son will detect my duplicity," said Mr. Ohlsport.
"I'm so frequently compelled to chide him for his lack of proficiency in his studies when I am secretly yearning to congratulate him on his fine football work."

Death of Youthful Japanese Emperor.

According to a Spanish writer on Japan, the most pathetic suicide recorded in the history of that country took place over eight centuries ago.
"In 1181," writes Senor Gomez Carillo, "the nine-year-old Emperor Kotonu saw his troops defeated. The child disheveled his hair, wept copiously, and invoked the holy name of Buddha. When he had finished his nurse Nidono took him in her arms to the seashore. 'There is a lovely city beneath the bay,' she said, and then the waves covered the emperor and his nurse."

Expensive.

"How often is your motor overhauled, Binks?" asked Dusenberry.
"Four times last month," said Binks.
"Four times in one month? Geesusalem! what for?" demanded Dusenberry.

"Speeding," said Binks. "Twice by the bicycle cops, once by a deputy sheriff, and once by a plain, common garden, village constable."—Judge.

A New Face.

Mrs. Platt and her little son Tommy frequently went to St. John's church and the little boy had become familiar with the minister's face. One Sunday morning another minister was filling the pulpit. Tommy seemed rather troubled. Finally he leaned over to his mother and in a very audible whisper said: "Mother, what's become of St. John?"

Flagged Train With Shirt.

Tearing his shirt from his back an Ohio man flagged a train and saved it from a wreck, but H. T. Alston Raleigh, N. C., once prevented a wreck with Electric Bitters. "I was in a terrible plight when I began to use them," he writes, "my stomach, head, back and kidneys were all badly affected and my liver was in bad condition, but for bottles of Electric Bitters made me feel like a new man." A trial will convince you of their matchless merit for a stomach liver or kidney trouble. Price 50 cents at R. E. McRoberts & Son.

Fine for Two.
"Did you ever tell that young man that late hours were bad for one?" asked father at the breakfast table.
"Well, father," replied the wise daughter, "late hours may be bad for one, but they're all right for two."

A Great Building Falls

On the first signs of indigestion, Dr. King's New Life Pills should be taken to tone the stomach and regulate liver, kidneys and bowels. Pleasant, easy, safe and only 25 cents at R. E. McRoberts & Son.

Not Her Hero.
"I suppose you are proud of your wife's literary success?" said the intimate friend. "Yes," replied Mr. Stubbs.

"Only I wish she wouldn't insist on making the hero of every novel a tall, athletic young man, with wavy hair and piercing blue eyes. Anybody can see that I am short, fat, bald, and compelled to wear specs."—The Pathfinder.

Not long after, I weighed 115. Now, I do all my work, and am in good health." Begin taking Cardui, today.

Burley Tobacco Growers Boost Your Own Brands

We, as you know, are using your choicest tobacco in the brands of Strater Bros., Branch, and you know that nobody grows better tobacco than you do. You know how we manufacture, so you know that these brands are perfection. Now we want you to help us sell these brands this year even better than our best previous years. The reasons you should so help are as follows:

You Are Part Owner

The fact that you grow the tobacco makes you part owner of all these brands. Every time that one sells you profit. Every word that you say in favor of any helps to increase these sales. Every brand that you buy for your own use helps make these profits better. All our interests—your interests and ours—are pooled in these several tobaccos. It is logic that you should lend all of your efforts, however small, in the selling.

The United Power of 40,000 Buyers

40,000 men in a section wield an enormous buying influence. If all ask for these brands when they buy tobacco there results a gigantic sale. And big sales are the best advertising known.

Smokers and chewers flock to brands that they see the most people buying. 40,000 steady users indirectly make 40,000 more. Get in on the Strater Bros. Branch Brands—the brands that you grow for—by using these brands yourself.

Tell Every Friend

Tell your friends of these brands. Tell them what you know of the tobacco. Tell them you grow it and smoke and chew it yourself, so you know. Tell them it comes from Kentucky, from the center of the richest Burley sections. Let them know it's the cream of your crop and that they can buy these brands from "most any dealer, because dealers know that these brands are the best they can buy."

Burley growers should be Burley Buyers and the best way to buy is to BUY BURLEY—YOUR OWN BRANDS—YOURSELF.

To Dealers! Dealers throughout the United States know these famous tobaccos. They are Nation-wide and re-popular brands. They are helping these dealers to prosper. They are made from the pick of the famous crops of 40,000 growers. Every one of these growers is boosting them all. So are all of their friends. This method is bringing the profits to dealers—to those who sell these brands. Are they working for you? Here are the mild, fragrant smoking brands—GOLDEN GLOW—PENNY POST—FULL PAY. Here are the delicious chewing brands—INDEX—BY JOE TWIST—CUP—DAY'S WORK—ON THE SQUARE—TORCHLIGHT—STRATER'S NATURAL LEAF. Put them into your stock. See how they sell.

Hogwallow News.

Sim Flinders has been grunting around this week. The horse doctor says he has been eating too much hawg meat.

There is another probability on the political horizon, a young son having been born at the home of Atlas Peck Friday night.

Poke Eazley has returned from a prospecting tour through the Gander creek woods, and reports a bountiful crop of leaves.

Miss Fruzze Allsop is in favor of votes for the ladies. Yam Sims says she already looks like a bunch of padded election returns.

With the approach of cold weather Tobie Moseley has put an overcoat on the scarecrow that has stood in his watermelon patch all summer.

Little Fiddy Flinders has been reading some riddles out of the almanac and will spring them on the Wild Onion school teacher when school begins.

Sim Flinders has swapped for a gray horse that he claims is more than seventeen hands tall. Sidney Hooks says Sim will have to build a two story stable.

Miss Rosy Moseley knocked on the window at Raz Barlow as he passed there the other evening, but he was busy thinking about something else and did not hear her.

Miss Gondola Henstep entertained a few friends this week in honor of one of her many birthdays. Copies of the Ladies' Birthday Almanac were handed around as souvenirs.

Raz Barlow was over at Tickville the other day and made a close examination of some window glass. He says the reason glass breaks so easy is that it is stretched too tight.

It is to be hoped that the dirt-dobbers will not take the liberty that they did last winter by carrying mud into the church and building their nests on the ceiling. This should by all means be stopped.

Ellick Hellwanger has a close escape from drowning in Gimlet creek Tuesday night, when he accidentally rode off of the bridge. He was saved only on account of the fact that there was no water in the stream at that point.

Immediately upon receipt of the information that Roosevelt was shot, the horse doctor of the Calf Ribs section held himself in readiness for a call, but says he supposed some of the doctors nearer at hand attended to him all right.

Fit Smith says the more a person knows the more he has the headache, and for this reason he has stopped taking the Tickville Tidings. But Poke Eazley says he has been a constant reader of the Tidings for several years without a symptom.

After having read the annual crop report of the United States and Europe and finding there were several million bushels of corn raised last season, Jefferson Potlocks has decided that it will not be any need of his raising his usual two acres of corn the coming year.

Miss Hosteter Hooks, who has dabbled considerably in literature for the past several years, has several orders ahead for obituaries, and also for a recommendation for a hair tonic. She has become so apt at writing obituaries that she can sit down and write one without knowing anything about the past life of deceased.

ENDORSED AT HOME.

Such Proof As This Should Convince Any Lancaster Citizen.

The public endorsement of a local citizen is the best proof that can be produced. None better, none stronger can be had. When a man comes forward and testifies to his fellow-citizens, addresses his friends and neighbors, you may be sure he is thoroughly convinced or he would not do so. Telling one's experience when it is for the public good is an act of kindness that should be appreciated. The following statement given by a resident of Lancaster adds one more to the many cases of Home Endorsement which are being published about Doan's Kidney Pills. Read it.

Frank Hibbard, Water St., Lancaster, Ky., says: "My experience with Doan's Kidney Pills has been such that I do not hesitate to advise their use. I had weak kidneys. Their action was irregular and often painful. My back pained me. It was then that I used Doan's Kidney Pills. They fixed me up in good shape. The pains left it and my kidneys became normal."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Hunting License.
There seems to be some dissatisfaction amongst the applicants for Hunting License, because of the fact. County Clerk J. W. Hamilton is charging therefor $1.50. one dollar of this amount is for the License and fifty cents for the seal thereon. The law as passed by the last General Assembly required that all Hunting License be issued under the Seal of the Court, and there is a former provision requiring Clerk's to charge fifty cents for this seal and when so paid to the Clerk it must be reported and paid to the Trustee of the Jury Fund of the County and is applied to the General Fund, that is to pay Jurors &c, the amount of money collected from the Hunting License with the exception of fifteen cents due the Clerk for his services under the law is paid direct to the Treasurer of the State and is placed to the credit of the Fish and Game Fund.

The County Clerk here Mr. J. W.
Hamilton being in doubt as to the right and authority to collect the said fee of fifty cents for the Seal on said Hunting License, on August 16th, 1912, wrote to the Attorney General James Garrard in regard to the matter and on August 21, 1912, received an answer in which the Asst. Atty. Genl. Charlie H. Morris, gave as his opinion that said fee of fifty cents for the seal was not collectable and cited a test case of Mason against Lee, in the Court of Appeals which he stated would decide the matter. Mr. Hamilton again on the 13 day of November, 1912, wrote to the Attorney General in regard to the matter and received the following letter.

Office of Attorney General.
Frankfort, Ky. November 15, 1912.
J. W. Hamilton, Lancaster, Ky.

Dear Sir:—Yours of 13th, inst. has been handed to me for reply. The case to which I referred in my letter of August 21 1912, (Mason vs Lee), has not yet been decided. However, since my letter to you, this department has held that the fifty cents on seal placed on Hunter's License is not collectible.

I think you would be safe in returning the amounts collected for seal to the respective parties from whom they were collected.

Yours very truly,
Charles H. Morris,
Assistant Attorney General.

Mr Hamilton, the County Clerk says that he has deposited in the Citizens National Bank to his credit as clerk
the fifty cents thus collected for the seal and when the Court of Appeals finally decides, the matter he is then ready to pay the money to the State, or back to the parties as directed by the Court of Appeals. At this writing there has been 76 Hunting License issued.

PREPARES TO MOVE

Then Young Author Makes the Discovery That She Is Famous.

By MOLLY McMASTER.

Prudence gazed wistfully about the small studio that had been her haven of dreams for the last two years. She had taken it on the strength of having sold a poem to one of the magazines, and her heart had been filled with hope and the foundation of success.

A tear trickled through her lashes and splashed down onto the keys of her typewriter. Spasmodic breaths began to tear at the girl's slight frame, and her head went forward on her arms, and Prudence burst into an uncontrollable passion of weeping. Farewell to her hopes, farewell to the dear, delightful studio were embodied in her grief; and the horrible feeling of failure crowded it all. One by one her manuscripts had been returned to her. They were far too poetic, too much a part of the dream world for the average reader to appreciate.

"Your characters are ethereal, not human," one editor had written. "Put them under the sprinkling can of human emotions and let them get spattered with mud. You will write a story then."

"But I do not see the mud," Prudence had bemoaned within herself. "nor did my father write about mud spattered characters—yet he was successful," she had argued in imagination with that editor.

"But your father was a man, and a man's life touches earth more frequently than does a woman's. Your poet father's pen was human."

So Prudence had struggled on with her ethereal heroes and heroines. The meager amount left her by her successful but overgenerous father had dwindled down. Prudence's slim pocketbook and shabby clothes testified to an ardent need of money.

"I dare not attempt to keep my studio for another year," she told herself, "the editors may be just as cruel as they have been." She smiled through her tears. "And I certainly will not marry Bobby, because he calls me a 'pipe dreamer.'"

Even so, Prudence did not decide to give up her studio without a struggle.

"Still," she sighed, "there is no use my having a studio if I am going into an office, and if I will be wearing stiff collars and shirtwaists." Prudence cast a regretful glance at her shabby, artistic brown frock, and at the same time smoothed back a tousled head of brown curls. "Yes, I will have to give it up. Studios would not be respectable if connected with a girl in shirtwaists and tight skirts. I will look about for a hall room."

And with the bravery that had kept her courage up through untold misery Prudence made arrangements to move the following Monday.

Had Prudence known the meaning of the word irony she would have considered the fact that a substantial check came to her from one of her stories on the Saturday before her departure as a bit of irony.

But, because to Prudence, irony, hypocrisy and slander held no part in the big scheme of existence she only rejoiced in her good fortune and forthwith spent a portion of the money on flowers.

"I want my studio to be beautiful on the last day," she choked back her tears while she arranged a great cluster of pink roses in her favorite rose jar.

During Sunday Prudence was half hysterical and half brave. She had not realized how terrible the parting with the dream of life was to be until she felt the evening hours of her last day drawing in.

She sank into the big cozy chair beside the red lamp and tried to feel that on the morrow she would be an office girl. A friend of her father's had secured Prudence a position as first reader on a magazine.

"And tomorrow evening I will go home to my horrid little hall room with tired eyes from having read many bad manuscripts," Prudence smiled ruefully and shadows darkened her eyes.

The brass knocker on the door told her that a guest was without. "I wanted to be alone," she commented, as she went to the door.

The man who had knocked crept straight into the heart of Prudence. He was genial and happy and frank-looking.

"Are you Miss Prudence Lange?" he asked.

"Yes," said Prudence, and opened the door still wider. "Will you come in?"

"Thank you," James Henry said, and went within.

Prudence closed the door, and somehow the atmosphere was suddenly charged with electricity. She found her voice almost refusing to echo her mental question.

"I have good news for you," James Henry told her when they were both seated. He began without preamble. "Do you—but of course you do, remember sending a play called 'Stolen Idols' to Emory Hill?"

"Two long years ago," Prudence smiled wistfully. "I had no acknowledgment even," she added.

"During our South African tour," James Henry went on, as if he expected Prudence to know that Emory Hill had taken his entire company to South Africa, "I discovered your play among Mr. Hill's mail. I am Mr.

Hill's business manager, and when I had read your play I found something worth while in it."

Prudence managed to smile through the excitement that was now flaming in her cheeks and sparkling in her eyes.

"I am rather good at making over other writers' plots," he continued without conceit, "and I took your play and ran your characters through the mud—just sufficient to make them earthly," James Henry laughed, and Prudence joined him.

"An editor once told me that my characters needed the sprinkling cart run over them," she told him, "You are evidently the driver."

"A mighty good one at that," laughed James Henry. "So don't faint—or anything—when I tell you that I have a sum that runs over the ten-thousand mark for you. I put your play on, and it has been running to crowded houses through South Africa. We have brought it home to try in New York. Do you mind?"

"Mind!" Prudence did not faint, but she jumped up and took James Henry by both hands.

"If I knew you better," she cried, "I would dance you about the room. As it is I can only thank you from my heart."

James Henry laughed, because there was something in the voice of Prudence that warned him that tears were scarcely hidden, and he knew that if she cried he would not remember that he had known her a scant five minutes. As it was, the soft pressure of her fingers was tingling up his arm.

"We, of course, are collaborators?" Prudence stated, rather than questioned.

"As a manager I can not have my name flaming on all the billboards," said James Henry. "But since a collaborator is what you require—I want the other half. We will turn out some plays between us that will travel through all the stock companies in the country after they have had record runs on Broadway."

"Then I will cancel my order for the moving van," Prudence laughed and caressed the studio with her eyes. "I should have told you before."

James Henry put in contentedly, and for the first time noticed the shabbiness of her brown frock.

"No, no!" she cried swiftly, "your coming so unexpectedly has been wonderful—she broke off suddenly, and James Henry glared in the bushes that swept across the girl's cheeks.

"Quite too wonderful," he commented inwardly.

Funds to Save the Herons.
Following the publication of an account of a disaster which has recently befallen a great colony of herons which occupied a small island of about three acres in the marsh near Charleston, S. C., a public-spirited woman has contributed $100 toward the purchase of the island.

On the island from one thousand to three thousand herons of five different kinds—including the snowy egret, the rarest and most beautiful of all the heron tribe—had their homes and reared their young. A brief time ago the owner of the island, an Atlanta man, practically wiped out the heronry by having the bushes which covered the place cut away and the island planted in oats.

Today two or three hundred herons still breed in the few bushes that remain on the island, while it is believed that the greater number of the birds have established themselves on another island near by.

It All Depended.
Fair Elizabeth tripped blithely into the country postoffice.

"Now, I want to know," she demanded, with a tell-tale blush, as she handed the clerk a pink communication addressed to her lover, "how long it will be before I get an answer to this letter?"

"That depends," he answered. "If he's in jail they will let him write once a week or, maybe, once a month only. If he's dead broke he'll have to wait till he can earn the price of a stamp, and I have no data upon which to base an opinion of his earning capacities. If he's ill in bed he may not care to dictate his heart's sentiments to a cold, disinterested third party; and if it's smallpox they won't let him write at all; ditto if he's dead. Then, again, if he's got a new girl—"

At which moment he realized that the fair Elizabeth had frown.

Our Furnace Symposium.
Banking the fire is a very simple process. It is easier to bank anything else we know of. We have been able to bank anything excepting a fire for several years. Place the ashes in the four sifter and thus sprinkle them carefully over the coals. Three tea-cupfuls for a small furnace, the kind that goes out every five minutes, and five tea-cupfuls for one of the battle-ship variety. Close all of the drafts, or leave all of them open, as you choose, turn out the gas in the basement, lock the kitchen door, take your dose of Family Tea, wind the clock, put out the cat and go to bed. If these directions are followed faithfully you will in the morning find one of two conditions: The fire will be going or it will be out.—Boston Globe.

Marriage Today.
"But I can't afford to buy you a duke."

"Now, father, the proposition will finance itself. Cards for an international wedding will bring fancy prices, and then there's the moving-picture rights."

On His Guard.
Two richly upholstered dames sat on the hotel veranda and watched the wild waves dancing the turkey trot.

"That young man yonder is reputed to be very rich," said one.

"He is hopeless, however," declared the other. "No girl will catch him."

"Why do you say that?"

"I told him yesterday that your daughter looked sweet enough to eat, and he responded hastily that he was a strict vegetarian."

Wasting Words.
"For a grown man, you talk a heap of foolishness."

"What's the matter now?"

"I overheard some of your chatter on the hotel veranda last night."

"Well?"

"What's the use of asking a girl to love you always when you're only going to be at the seashore two weeks?"

Eager to Help Him.
The city editor looked over the manuscript the caller had handed him.

"If I run this item, madam," he said, "I shall have to use the blue pencil on about nine-tenths of it."

"O, that's too much trouble!" she exclaimed. "Let me have it again, and I'll write it all with a blue pencil!"

A Cruel Thrust.
Miss Oldgirl—"If I were going to be married, I would not give the impudent license men my real age."

Miss Pert—"Well, they don't have to have prize guessers for some things."

Strictly Vegetarian.
"Do these people keep a cow?" asked one city girl.

"No," replied the other. "They don't have to. They have a fine patch of milkweed growing back of the barn."

BOTH 'PHONES 964.
LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 23, 1912. The Lexington market for the sale of tobacco opened on Tuesday, November 19, under very favorable conditions, except the continued dry season caused the offerings of tobacco to be smaller than was expected.

The attendance at the opening sale of buyers of manufacturers throughout this country, and representative buyers for the export trade was no doubt the largest and most numerous that ever attended any sale of tobacco on any market. This fact demonstrating again to the sellers of tobacco the superiority and magnitude that the Lexington market holds in the minds of the buyers and users of tobacco. A very large crowd of farmers were on hand showing their interest in the prices which they might expect to obtain for their crops.

The total offerings on the market for the first week were 198,545 pounds, prices ranging from $4.00 to $33.00 per hundred. The general average on the entire offerings for the week being $11.32.

The quality of the tobacco showed to be largely of the colony type with a sprinkle of good, bright red chewing tobacco. While there were some baskets of common tobacco, this grade showed to be very scarce in comparison with the 1911 crop. The first offerings of tobacco on our market shows the quality of it to be, on the whole, rather pleasing and a very useful grade for the manufacturing trade.

Prices and averages obtained for various crops offered were satisfactory to the seller, and justifies the grower in marketing his crop, the only disappointment to him being that the yield in weight this year will probably prove to be lighter than usual.
